Annex V. Declaration of the Civil Society General Consensus Document

- 1. The United Nations Conference on Environment and Development in its principle 10 establishes the participation of the various groups of civil society which was ratified at the Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg, South Africa.
- 2. In 2002, in Cartagena, Colombia, the governments ratified the annual practice of UNEP, by organizing the Global Civil Society Forum (GCSF) along with the Governing Council of the UNEP/Global Ministerial Environment Forum by adopting Decision SSVII.5, which requires that "The Executive Director continues the current practice of summoning civil society to a regionally objective and representative forum coinciding with the meetings of the Governing Council/Global Ministerial Environment Forum to consult very closely with civil society."
- 3. The most recent GCECF and the 5th Global Civil Society Forum were held in Jeju, Korea, on March 27 and 28, 2004, prior to the GC/GMEF, having the participation of 206 civil society representatives from 40 countries. The success attained was due to a process of preparation of the regional civil society that was strengthened in each region.
- 4. Based upon the experiences of previous meetings between civil society and the UNEP, and considering that this is the time to strengthen the objectives of sustainable development that promote policies and mechanisms that support the work of UNEP and its member governments.
- 5. The premise upon which the discussion was based and from where other discussions emanated, in search of complementary actions and the building of consensus among governments and civil society in the harmonization between development and the environment.
- 6. Recognizing the importance of these processes, the Civil Society representatives gathered on November 22 and 23, 2004 in Panama City, Panama, at the Regional Forum of Latin America and the Caribbean, hereby declare:

I. Participation of the Civil Society in Intergovernmental Meetings

- 1. The civil society requires direct (formal) participation with proposal- and decision-making capacity at intergovernmental meetings and in relation to UNEP, and consequently we propose:
 - a) Representation of the civil society with decision-making capacity within the UNEP Governing Council.
 - b) Mechanisms for discussion and consensus prior to decision time spaces, in order to ensure the work with representation.
 - c) Direct participation of civil society in the decisions, the submission of proposals, and the preparation of UNEP documents and its Governing Council.
 - d) Participation of the civil society must take place within an ethical framework and in accordance with the principles of the Earth Charter, in which prominence is given to transparency, the rendering of accounts, and access to information;
 - e) Recognition by the governments of the civil society's role as an interlocutor and a warranty that participation from the citizens will be included;

- f) Formal validation of the opinions from the civil society at the same level as those of the governments, and that any conclusions will take the two positions into account, recognizing civil society's right to be heard and to vote.
- g) Promotion of the processes of public participation at a national level on five main aspects: Institutional Processes and Structures; Legal Frameworks; Education, Communication and Information for Public Participation; Financing and Spaces for Deliberation by the Citizens.
- h) Strengthening the incidence of civil society groups in government decisions at a national level, with fundamental support from the countries in which civil society is heard so that these intergovernmental bodies are reached.
- i) Including of the civil society vision on the world agenda from the technical point of view, based on a policy of sustainable development.

2. As activities that are needed to achieve these objectives, we propose:

- a) The creation of a permanent articulation body of the civil society for discussions with UNEP and its Governing Council and at international meetings on environment and sustainability.
- b) Advance preparatory regional and sub-regional meetings for the discussion of documents, proposals, plans, and programmes.
- c) Dissemination of official documents for sub-regional review, which will allow the drafting and analysis of proposals prior to the meetings between UNEP and the civil society.
- d) An effective communications strategy between UNEP and the articulation body created by the civil society, to facilitate the dissemination of information and direct participation in the drafting of proposals and the making of decisions.

II. Preliminary contributions to UNEP for the document "Review of the UNEP's preliminary Work Programme 2006-2007, from the perspective of the Civil Society" UNEP / LAC-CS-GC / 5.

1. In general terms, the civil society organizations gathered here recognize that the alliance between UNEP and the civil society is both strategic and necessary in order to advance toward the fulfilment of our goals and common goals on the issue of sustainability. In the same way, the civil society recognizes that UNEP constitutes a space for coordination and articulation that helps to strengthen the role of civil society at the decision-making bodies at local, national, and regional levels.

2. The participation, cooperation, and exchange between UNEP and the civil society is possible and necessary, taking into account the following elements:

- a) Direct participation in key decision-making institutions (such as the Governing Council) with the authority to make resolutions, not only for consultations.
- b) Adequate dissemination to the civil society regarding UNEP information, documents, proposals, and projects so as to make room for responsible, informed, and timely participation.
- c) Mechanisms to facilitate the contribution of civil society by means of information and proposals of UNEP official documents, agreements, programmes, and projects.

- d) Dissemination to Civil Society Organizations of UNEP work plans for the short, medium, and long terms.
 - e) Direct participation of the civil society on the diagnosis, design, implementation, and evaluation of UNEP programmes and projects.
- 3. Within this framework, civil society will be willing to support the initiatives of UNEP, assuming the commitment of disseminating and collaborating with initiatives, programmes, and projects that are drafted in a participative manner.
- 4. It is necessary to formalize the participation of the civil society in the UNEP with a reference framework that establishes clear game rules.
- 5. The individuals that civil society chooses to represent it before the UNEP and international organizations must be rotated and elected in a democratic manner in order to guarantee continuity and transition.

III. Proposal for a Civil Society organization for Latin America and the Caribbean for its relationship with UNEP/ROLAC, and the UNEP Governing Council

- 1. The civil society organization formed for interlocution with the UNEP at the various spaces for discussion was organized by means of an independent and permanent coordination mechanism that will be known as the "Latin American and Caribbean Civil Society Coordinating Group for the Environment" (COSCE), and it will constitute a valid interlocutor before international organizations and official coordinators of government representatives; it will facilitate representation of civil society at international meetings on the environment and sustainability and will strengthen the role of the Civil Society Organizations (CSO's) before governments, the United Nations, and other international organizations of the area.
- 2. From the time it was created, this Coordinating Group undertook the task of establishing the required mechanisms of internal organization so that the network will be representative, operational, transparent, and democratic.
- 3. The structure of civil society must come from and be strengthened by local, national, regional, and global levels (pyramid structure). Each level (local, national, regional and global) will have a coordinating core group that should respond to each country's reality and the specificities of the various organizations, and which could involve recovery of the idea of councils for sustainable development. The networks constitute a link between the governments and the concrete reality of the populations.
- 4. In a provisional manner, the Coordinating Group will be made up of two sub-regional representatives elected for two-year periods, which will make up an eight-member group and guarantee adequate representation of the main groups. Two alternate representatives also were elected at the sub-regional level who will be able to replace the incumbents if the need arises.
- 5. During the first period of organization the Coordinating Group has requested UNEP support (liaison) to facilitate the tasks of dissemination, communication, and administrative management.
- 6. The objectives of the Coordinating Group will include, among others:
- a) Interaction with UNEP and the bodies in charge of diagnosing, drafting proposals, and implementing, following-up and evaluating UNEP plans, programs, projects, and documents.

- b) Follow-up and monitoring of the Latin American and Caribbean Initiative for Sustainable Development (ILAC), Millennium Goals, and Agenda 21.
- c) Communication and information towards and from civil society of issues related to coordination between the UNEP and the Coordinating Group regarding environmental and sustainability topics.
- d) Follow-up, monitoring, and evaluation of the agreements stemming from the meetings promoted by the UNEP and the Coordinating Group.
- e) Strengthening of the Civil Society Organizations that belong to the Coordinating group by means of the exchange of experiences and opinions.
- f) Encouraging the people to get involved on the environmental issues by means of information, dissemination, and awareness programs.
- g) Consensus-building within civil society, as well as synthesizing and unifying interests to enable the Coordinating Group to approach inter-governmental organizations as a constituted unit with legitimate positions.

7. After a period of one year, the Coordinating group must have accomplished the following tasks:

- a) Mechanisms for internal functioning and operation.
- b) Instruments for dissemination and communication - an electronic forum and four virtual meetings.
- c) Creation of sub-regional teams and selection of representatives.
- d) Indicators for monitoring of ILAC, the Millennium Goals, and Agenda 21, identifying thematic priorities.
- e) Establishment of a strategy to participate in environmental conventions up to date.
