

melting ice a hot topic?

ask an islander

As sea levels rise, inhabitants of low-lying islands and coastal cities face inundation. In December 2005, a small community living in the Pacific island chain of Vanuatu became perhaps the first to be formally moved as a result of climate change.

UNEP

United Nations Environment Programme
www.unep.org/wed/2007